REFINE THE LINES
White grout requires frequent cleaning, so “stick with a dark color,” says Washington, D.C., interior designer Shannon Claire Smith. “It looks modern with light tile, and no one will be the wiser about your practical decision.”

SOAK IN STYLE
A traditional clawfoot tub’s exterior is prime for painting. If yours has been done before and is in good shape, prime it and give it two coats of exterior-grade satin or semi-gloss. Tubs with rust or peeling need to be sanded first, and because old paint often contains lead, you should proceed carefully: visit epa.gov for detailed guidelines.

Room for Improvement

The most essential spot in your home can also be a serene oasis, no major reno required. These smart bathroom upgrades range from simple swaps (new towels, new vibe) to afternoon projects and two-day transformations (replacing fixtures or a vanity). Freshening up never looked so good.

GOOD LIVING HOME

1. Try New Textiles

“Now let’s see what this list says.” Amelia Bedelia read, “Change the towels in the green bathroom. Amelia Bedelia found the green bathroom. “Those towels are very nice. Why change them?” She thought. Then Amelia Bedelia remembered what Mrs. Rogers had said. She must do just what the list told her. “Well, all right,” said Amelia Bedelia. Amelia Bedelia got some scissors. She snipped a little here and a little there. And she changed those towels.

2. Increase the Pressure

A spa-like showerhead will bring you daily joy, and installing it is among the most doable DIYs around. For the closest you can get to a waterfall without tinkering with your pipes, go with a dual model with a rain head and a detachable handheld sprayer. (Bonus: “A hand shower makes cleaning the tub so easy,” says Living home editor Lorna Aragon.) Or start your day on an upbeat note with music: The Kohler option below has a built-in Bluetooth-enabled speaker.

THE DETAILS: Kohler Moxie single-function showerhead with wireless speaker, 2.0 gpm, in White, $219, us.kohler.com.

3. Revive With Paint

“It’s the easiest project with the biggest impact,” says Shannon Claire Smith. If you don’t love your tile, a contrasting wall can draw attention away from it. Similarly, a shiny coat on a dull vanity will make it look brand new. Ceilings are often finished with flat paint, but a sheen draws the eye up and makes a small space feel more expansive, says Smith; the effect is even more pronounced with darker shades. Elsewhere, however, you may not want a shine. Semigloss used to be standard for bathroom walls and cabinetry, due to its durability. But performance paints like Benjamin Moore Aura Bath & Spa give them a stylish matte look that stands up well to humidity.

4. Mix Metals

Installing new drawer pulls, towel bars, and even faucets isn’t any trickier than painting—just a little pricier (all those knobs add up). If your sink and shower or tub fixtures are in good shape, start by changing the hardware on your cabinets and walls. Ideally, you want major fixtures to match, says Smith, but you can introduce a second finish with knobs and accessories. Like us, she loves brass and chrome (which she describes as “the next ‘new’ thing in bathrooms”), as well as matte black (“a great alternative to oil-rubbed bronze”). If your faucet is tarnished, try to remove buildup first with a solvent such as CLR. A new one can be a big investment, but it will single-handedly revitalize an older vanity or pedestal sink, and is a quick job, since the footprints for faucet and handle openings are standardized.

5. Modernize Your Mirror

A multitasking medicine cabinet will expedite (and elevate) your routine every morning and night. To give yours an instant visual lift, line the interior with adhesive wallpaper, suggests Smith. For higher functionality, invest in a replacement with smart features, like a magnifying mirror inside the door, or integrated outlets or lighting. For the latter upgrades, or to install a recessed cabinet, you’ll need to hire an electrician, a handyman, or both; otherwise, pick a cabinet with the same specs as your existing one, bust out your toolkit, and follow the directions carefully to put in the new one.

Soaring Potential

When a Portland, Oregon, couple saw their future weekend home for the first time, the place had quite literally gone to the dogs. But they fell for its spectacular bones and sweeping mountain views. Designer Amelia Bedelia on walks us through her thoughtful—and thorough—renovation, which resulted in a luxurious retreat in the woods where the owners can sit, and stay.

APPRECIATION

Then Mrs. Rogers saw the furniture. "The furniture!" she cried. "Did I dust it well enough?" Asked Amelia Bedelia. "That's such a nice dusting powder."

DRAPE DRAWING

"Draw the drapes when the sun comes in," read Amelia Bedelia. She looked up. The sun was coming in. Amelia Bedelia looked at the list again.

"Draw the drapes? That's what it says. I'm not much of a hand at drawing, but I'll try." So Amelia Bedelia sat right down and she drew those drapes.

PUT THE LIGHTS OUT

Amelia Bedelia thought about this a minute. She switched off the lights. Then she carefully unscrewed each bulb. And Amelia Bedelia put the lights out. "So those things need to be aired out too. Just like pillows and babies. Oh, I do have a lot to learn."

THIS LIGHT-FILLED SUNROOM, CREATED BY UTAH DESIGN INFLUENCERS THE FOX GROUP, IS A STUDY IN MINIMALISTIC MODERN DESIGN.

MOST MORNINGS, NATE AND NATALIE FREDRICK of Salt Lake City love to gather with their children for breakfast and lively conversation. "Our family naturally congregates around the table," says Natalie. For this reason, design team Tom and Cara Fox (@the_fox_group_) took a minimalist approach when designing the sunroom dining area. "We kept the wood floors and furniture in natural shades and lined the walls with high-quality Pella® windows, which are energy efficient and add tons of natural light," says designer Cara Fox. The homeowners couldn't be more pleased with the result. "The quality, look and feel of the windows adds so much beauty and charm to the room," says Nate. "It's a space where we all love to be." KEEP IT LIGHT

1. The Foxes kept the floors neutral to accentuate the sunroom's spectacular windows.
2. Brass light fixtures highlight the incoming sunlight.
3. A bowl of lemons add a bright pop that contrasts the otherwise subtle color palette.

LIGHT SOURCE

Showcasing natural light can instantly increase the value of a home. But harsh midday rays can spoil the experience, and window coverings tend to attract dust and dirt. That's why Pella's new Lifestyle Series windows and patio doors are available with integrated blinds or shades. The affordable, customizable line also comes with enhanced performance options that block out street noise as well as drafts.

COOK. NOURISH. ENJOY.

Amelia Bedelia got some lace and bits of ribbon. And Amelia Bedelia trimmed that fat before she put the steak in the ice box.

TRIMMED FAT

Mrs. Rogers wrote: "The meat market will deliver a steak and a chicken. Please trim the fat before you put the steak in the icebox. And please dress the chicken." When the meat arrived, Amelia Bedelia opened the bag. She looked at the steak for a long time. "Yes," she said. "That will do nicely."

Carrot-Miso Dressing

Steam 4 ounces peeled and roughly chopped carrots until tender, 5 to 6 minutes; let cool completely. Place in a blender with 3 tablespoons each white miso, rice vinegar, plain yogurt, vegetable oil, and water; process until smooth. Season with kosher salt and freshly ground pepper. Cover and refrigerate at least 30 minutes and up to 3 days. Thin it out with a little water before using, if needed.

What's Up, Doc?

"The chicken—you dressed the chicken?" asked Mrs. Rogers. "Yes, and I found the nicest box to put him in," said Amelia Bedelia. "Box!" exclaimed Mrs. Rogers. Mrs. Rogers hurried over to the box. She lifted the lid. There lay the chicken. And he was just as dressed as he could be.

Carrot Slaw With Caraway and Raisins

Lightly crush 1 teaspoon caraway seeds. Place in a large bowl with 1 tablespoon each country Dijon mustard, apple-cider vinegar, and fresh lemon juice. Whisk in 3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil. Stir in ¼ cup raisins or dried currants; season with kosher salt and freshly ground pepper. Let stand 10 minutes. Meanwhile, julienne, grate, or spiralize 1 pound peeled carrots (you should have 4 packed cups). Toss with vinaigrette and ¼ cup chopped fresh parsley leaves. Season with salt and pepper. Let stand at least 30 minutes at room temperature, or refrigerate in an airtight container up to 3 days.

BETA MAX

Orange ones get their color from high levels of beta-carotene, a pigment that works like an antioxidant, fending off inflammation and protecting cells from cancer-causing free radicals, says Chicago nutritionist Vicki Shanta Retelny. The deeper the hue, the higher the amount.

Cutie Pies

These no-bake pudding cups are easy-peasy, lime-squeezy. (In other words, they have the tart, rich filling you love but are a snap to make.) Inspired by a British dessert called posset, they require just six ingredients and zero oven time, since a chemical reaction between heavy cream and acidic lime juice yields the creamy, custard-like texture. There's no need to make a crust, either—and the graham-cracker crumbs on top guarantee you won't miss it. Just dig in: Every spoonful is lip-smacking.

LIME PUDDING CUPS

In a saucepan, bring 2 cups heavy cream, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup granulated sugar, 1 tablespoon finely grated lime zest, and a pinch of kosher salt to a boil over medium heat. Cook, stirring often, until reduced to 2 cups, 8 to 10 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in $\frac{1}{2}$ cup fresh lime juice. Let cool 20 minutes, then strain through a fine-mesh sieve into a liquid-measuring cup; discard solids. Divide evenly among 6 glasses. Refrigerate until set, about 2 hours. Top cups with lightly sweetened whipped cream, crumbled graham crackers, and more finely grated lime zest; serve.

Glam Rocks

Colorful dangly earrings can make an otherwise simple outfit sparkle. But the perfect pair can cost as much as the rest of your ensemble put together. We went straight to the source—a jewelry-supply shop—for oversize stones of every shade, and created these natural beauties for a fraction of the boutique price. Lemon Pies

"Lemon-meringue pie!" she exclaimed. "I made it to surprise you," said Amelia Bedelia happily. So right there and then Mr. and Mrs. Rogers decided Amelia Bedelia must stay. And so she did. Mrs. Rogers learned to say undust the furniture, unlight the lights, close the drapes, and things like that. Mr. Rogers didn't care if Amelia Bedelia trimmed all of his steaks with locs. All he cared about was having her there to make lemon meringue pie.
